

Contest Toastmaster Script Tall Tales Speech Contest

Ladies and Gentlemen, welcome to the Tall Tales Speech Contest.

Speech contests are an important part of the Toastmasters Educational Program. They provide an opportunity for Toastmasters to gain speaking experience, as well as an opportunity for others to learn by observing proficient speakers.

Each contestant must be a member in good standing of a Club in good standing, and all contestants have confirmed their eligibility and originality of their speech in writing to the Chief Judge.

Contests follow all rules in the Speech Contest Rulebook of Toastmasters International.

All Contestants choose their own speech topic. That topic must be of a highly exaggerated, improbably nature, and have a theme or plot. It may be personal in nature and contain language, ideas, or beliefs that some audiences may consider sensitive.

Tall Tales speeches shall be between three and five minutes in length, and a contestant will be disqualified if their speech is less than two minutes and 30 seconds, or more than five minutes and 30 seconds. All contestants have been made aware of the speaking area and how the timing device will work.

Timers: for the contestants, please display the green signal at three minutes, the amber signal at four minutes, and the red signal at five minutes. There will be no further indication of time and the red signal will remain displayed until the contestant finishes.

Either one of these two scenarios will now follow.

1) *If this Contest is not part of a larger event, nor combined with other contests, then announce the following: Protests are limited to eligibility, originality, and reference to another contestant's speech. Only Contestants and Voting Judges may lodge a protest, which must be lodged with either the Contest Chair or the Chief Judge prior to the announcement of the Contest winners. No protests will be entertained after that time. There is a protocol in place to deal with protests if they arise.
